UNITED STATES SUPREME COURT.

An Important Case Testing the Legal Power of Consuls from Other Nations-The Claim of the Seamen of the Prussian Bark Edwin Wreplin.

WASHINGTON, April 19, 1872. The following preceedings took place in the Supreme court to-day :--In the case of Newman and others against the Prussian bark Edward Kreplin for seamen's wages, notion was now made for a mandamus to Cirtrict of New York, to compel him to assume jurisdiction of the case and to hear an appeal from a decree of District Judge Benedict on the merits, Judge Benedict having entered a decree for the wages claimed. Judge Woodruf, on appeal, reversed the decree, holding that no Court of the United States had jurisdiction of the cause, because under the treaty of 1829 with Prussia the Prussian Consul has sole jurisdiction of such claims, and that officer having actually decided the case against the appeliants they were bound by that adjudication. It is here maintained that the treaty stipulations are unconstitutional and void, because they strip the Admiraity Courts of the United States of the jurisdiction conferred upon them by the constitution, because the treaty has no reference to proceedings in rem. and because the treaty is with the kingdom of Prussia, and there are no consuls or vice-consuls of that kingdom now in the United States, and those of the North German Union, which, it is urged, do not come within the treaty stipulation. Many minor points are also urged, and it is submitted that to maintain such tribunals in our midst is to create many tribunals independent of our institutions. Thirteen untionalities are cited which have treaties with similar clauses, thus establishing thirteen other tribunals of the same citass.

No. 59.—French vs. Edwards et al.—Error to the appeal from a decree of District Judge

No. 59 .- French vs. Edwards et al .- Error to the Circuit Court for California .- This is an action of electment, brought by the plaintiff in error to recover possession of a tract of land in Sacramento county, California, being a part of what is known as the Sutter grant. The plaintiff derived title from one Vance, who held under Sutter, where title was founded on a Mexican grant mode in 1841, and patent from the United States, issued on June 20, 1868. The defendants claimed under parties who held a Sheriir's deed, in pursuance of a judgment in favor of the State, in an action brought to recover delinquent taxes. Upon the evidence introduced by the defence to prove the regularity of the proceedings under which the Sheriir's deed was given, the Court directed a verdict for the defendants, and it is here insisted that this instruction was error, because the tax deed was invalid for irregularities. It is urged that the whole of the property was sold to pay the judgment against it, find not merely such a portion of it as was necessary to pay the claims of the State, as required by law. It is also said that no judgment record was introduced to support the Sheriif's deed and that that document alone could show its verity. Other minor irregularities are submitted. E. O. Houghton, for plaintiif in error; E. Casserley, for defendants. founded on a Mexican grant mode in 1841, and patent ther minor irregularities are submitted. E. O. oughton, for plaintiff in error; E. UNITED STATES DISTRICT COURT-IN BANKRUPTCY. A Question About the Form of an Oath-

The Privilege of a Lawyer. Yesterday Judge Elatchford rendered a decision in the matter of James M. Adams, a bankrupt. On the 16th of March, in the present year, in an examination before Mr. Isaac Davton, the Register, William G. Gates, the assignee, who is also a creditor of the bankrupt, proposed to examine Mr. Edmund Terry, a lawyer, who had acted as attorney and counsel for the bankrupt. Mr. Terry then was sworn, his oath binding him to make true answers to all such questions as might be proposed to him respecting all the property of James M. Adams and ail dealings and transactions relating thereto, and make a true disclosure of all that had been done with the property to the best of his knowledge, information and belief; also that he would make a true answers to all questions relating to the disposal or condition of the said property be trade and dealing of the bankrupt with others and his accounts concerning the same, to all debts due or claimed from him, and all other matters concerning the property and the due settlement thereof according to law. To this oath was added a reservation, by which Mr. Terry reserved to himself his right to refuse to answer any question in regard to such matters, on the ground of privilege as the attorney and counsel of Adams, which he might not be able to answer except, in consequence of his retainer as such attorney and counsel and from information derived from his client as such.

Under the above oath but one introductory question was put to Mr. Terry, after which the proceedings were adjourned to the 18th of March. On that administered to him by the Register on the 18th of March. The kegister then prepared and proposed a form of oath, but Mr. Terry refused to be sworn according to it, at the same time declaring his willingness to be further examined under the oath he had taken on the 18th of March, the main substance of which is given above. He also declared that he was willing to be sworn in this bankruptcy "in regard to the matters now pending before the Register," and submitted a form of oath to that effect to the Register to the single Bankrupt of the the reservation of Mr. Terry under the oath administered by the Register to the Judge.

Judge Blatchford holds the proper oath is that in the form inserted above, without the reservation o of the bankrupt, proposed to examine Mr. Edmund

SUPREME COURT-GENERAL TERM.

Important Decision Relative to Undertakings to Discharge Attachment. Bildersee vs. Aden.—This case is important from the fact that the question at issue was, under the statute, the first decided in this State. The plaintiff, in an action against a Mrs. Boxius, obtained an attachment. She afterwards delivered to the officer an undertaking, as provided by the Code, to obtain a return of the property. Subsequently the attachment was vacated on affidavits going to the attachment was vacated on adidavits going to the merits. The plaintiff obtained a judgment against Mrs. Boxius. An action was then brought upon the undertaking, and the defendants set up the discharge as a bay. The Judge at Trial Term dismissed the complaint. On appeal to the General Term the judgment was reversed by the following

Judge Ingraham, in rendering his decision, said:—The error in holding that any consideration was necessary to a pholo an undertaking given on a release of an attach, the release of the property levied on was a sufficient of the said of the property levied on was a sufficient was consideration, the release of an undertaking is given to discharact, under the provisions of the statute, no consideration, if any was necessary that where the attact time it is issued and an undertaking is given to discharact, under the provisions of the statute, no consideration is necessary either to be inserted thereon or to be proven on the trial. The Statute Code, sections 26, 241, provides that on application to discharge the attachment the defendant shall deliver to the Court or officer an undertaking, &c. It is a statutory undertaking for which no consideration is necessary. This has been repeatedly held. In Thempson vs. Blanchard, Sc. Com., 36, it was held that where a statute required an undertaking to be entered into to give a right of appeal it was valid, although it did not express a consideration. It was also then said that the Statute of Frauds only applied to common law agreements, and not to instrument created under special statues. This case was approved in Doolittle vs. Dorming, 31 N. Y., 350, and Johnson vs. Ackerman, 40 How'd Pr. Rep., 222. In Caleman vs. Bean, 28 How'd Pr. Rep., 272. In Caleman vs. Bean, 28 How'd Pr. Rep., 379, an undertaking purporting to be issued to discharge an attachment was held valid, although no such attachment was ever issued. It is urged for the respondent that the attachment along been set aside the undertaking fell with it and ceased to be a valid security. It is settled that if the attachment was improprly issued, and is afterwards set aside on that ground, there was so jurisdiction to sustain it, and, where that is the case, the undertaking sawell vs. Colgate, 7 Barth, 233, where the affidavit on which the attachment was issued mercely stated the belief of the party and did not authorize the issuing of the attachment was issued mercely stated the belief of the party and did not authorize the issuing of the attachment was sufficient to call upon the officer to whom it was presented to exercise his judgment in granting it, and the subsequent precedings to set it aside yid not raise the jurisdictional question. In such cases the role, I think, is that a hond or undertaking remains valid although the attachment is subsequently set, saide, unless the Court expressly orders the undertaking remains valid atthough the attachment is parti

SUPREME COURT-CHAMBERS. The Gould-Gordon Litigation.

Before Judge Brady. Jay Gould vs. George H. Gordon, alias Gordon Gordon.-This suit, which is an action to recover $273,000 in railroad stocks and certificates, alleged to have been obtained from the plaintiff through fraudulent representations, the facts of which were published in yesterday's HERALD, came up again in this Court yesterday. The defendant, who is represented as being known under the additional alias of the Earl of Aberdeen, was in the hallway chatting the Earl of Aberdeen, was in the hallway chatting unconcernedly with friends while the proceedings in the case were being conducted in Court. As on the previous day, the extended array of legal talent employed on both sides put in an appearance, embracing David Dudley Field, exJudge Fullerton, Henry S. Knox and Mr. Root for the plaintiff, and ex-Judge Pierrepont and Mr. Strahan for the defendant. It came up on a motion on behalf of plaintiff to vacate an order of the Court staying an examination of the defendant under a previous order until a motion could be heard on next Wednesday to vacate such original order.

under a previous order until a motion could be heard on next Wednesday to vacate such original order.

Mr. Field, in making the motion, claimed that they were entitled, under the practice, to the examination of the defendant, in order to obtain the facts necessary for them to form their complaint. He stated that two suits had been commenced against the defendant, an order of arrest having been obtained in one, and in the other the summons above having been served. The order now stayed was obtained in order to supply plaintiff with the information necessary to prove his complaint in the second action.

Mr. Strahau opposed the motion on behalf of the defendant. The affidavits of plaintiff in the second suit, he claimed, showed upon their face that the basis of the complaint was the alleged obtaining from plaintiff of stocks and property under fraudulent representations, and he insisted that if such representations were made they must necessarily be within the knowledge of the plaintiff, and, constituting as they did, all that was necessary to allege in the complaint. This fact appearing broadly on the face of plaintiff to enable him to frame his complaint. This fact appearing broadly on the face of plaintiff to enable him to frame his complaint. This fact appearing broadly on the face of plaintiff to enable him to frame his complaint to be made. The opposing counsel was clearly trying to deceive the Court.

Mr. Field denied that he was attempting to decrive the Court, and, passing this imputation by as unworthy of notice, stated that the defendant, though representing himself as a man of large wealth, got from Mr. Gould half a million doilars' worth of stocks and securities to be applied to cerve the Court, and, passing this imputation by as unworthy of notice, stated that the defendant, though representing himself as a man of large wealth, got from Mr. Gould half a million doilars' worth of stocks and securities to be applied to cerve the Court, and, passing this imputation by as unworthy of notice, stated that Vacated Assessments.

SUPERIOR COURT -TRIAL TERM-PART I. Non-Payment of Conpons on Railroad Bonds. Before Judge Monell.

Charles Mallory vs. West Shore Hudson River

Railroad company .- Some years ago the plaintiff sold a steam yacht to Mr. Thompson, President of the defendant's Company, receiving in payment $16,000 in railroad bonds and the balance in stock. Some time after, on applying for payment of the coupons, the same was refused. The present suit was brought for the whole amount, it being claimed that when the interest was not paid the principal was due. The facts stated were admitted by the defendant, but it was claimed that the bonds were not due until 1888, and that they contained no clause by which the principal could be set up as due; also that the mortgage by which the bonds could be foreclosed contained a clause that no single creditor could be preferred to others; that a failure to pay the coupons did not make compulsory payment of the principal, and that no action of foreclosure could be brought without the consent of a majority of the bondholders. The Court directed a verdict for the plaintiff for $16,131 88 in gold, subject to decision upon the exceptions to be carried to General Term. $16,000 in railroad bonds and the balance in stock.

John Tully, a youth, was tried and convicted of grand larceny. The testimony showed that on the night of the 31st of January, about nine o'clock, the prisoner and a confederate approached the windo of Louis Tobias' jewelry store, No. 170 Bowery, and that as soon as his "pall" threw a large stone and broke a pane of glass Tully thrust his hand in and stole $300 worth of property. They were pursued by Mr. Tobias and a boy named Hugo Zindig, who was standing at the next window and positively identified Tully, but the thieves cluded their pursuers. The prisoner was arrested four days after. A number of Bowery boys were called to establish an alibi, all of them stoully swearing that on the night of the larceny Tully was in Tony Pastor's Opera House from eight till ten o'clock. But the jury rendered a verdict of guilty, and the officer having informed the Judge that he saw Tully in the Bowery between eight and nine o'clock that hight and that he had been arrested three times, his Honor sent him to the State prison for three years and six months, remarking that all the boys who were on the stand were young rufflans.

ALLEGED BLACKMAILING OF A CLERGYMAN

The Case of Emma Couch-Motion to Withdraw Her Plea of Not Guilty

Yesterday, in the General Sessions, Messrs. H. L. Clinton and E. Delafield Smith made an earnest and successful effort to permit Emma Couch, who has been indicted charged with conspiracy in writing blackmailing letters to a clergyman of the Pro testant Episcopal Church in this city (the Rev. Dr. Carter), to withdraw her plea of not guilty. THE FACTS IN THE CASE.

It will be remembered that the accused was arraigned a week ago, having been brought into Court on a bench warrant, and pleaded not guilty to the indictment charging her with endeavoring to extort money from Dr. Carter on the ground of alleged criminal intimacy between them.

Mr. Clinton moved for leave to withdraw the plea of not guilty tendered by the defendant in the absence of her counsel, in order that they might move to quash the indictment, they believing that no offence had been committed by her within the statute. Mr. Smith said that when the case was up before the committing magistrate he understood that the young woman was discharged upon her own recognizance, and that the case would not be pursued nizance, and that the case would not be pursued further.

TIFF BETWEEN COUNSEL.

Mr. Sullivan informed the Court that he did not wish to offensively contradict the counsel, but he wished it to be distinctly understood that no stipulation or agreement or promise was entered into by him to refrain from prosecuting the case. The counsel made an earnest appeal to the Police Justice to permit the prisoner to go home with her father, he (the counsel) stating that Emma's father came from the country to endeavor to save from ruin his fallen daughter. She was permitted to go upon her own recognizance, under the belief that she would withdraw from that life which her counsel said was one of shame. But shortly afterwards a statement made by the defendant appeared in a well-known newspaper, reiterating the charges made against the clergyman, who then felt it to be his duty to appeal to the law and have the case prosecuted, so that his character might be vindicated from the foul and slanderous accusations of the girl.

Mr. Clinton responded at length stating that the he girl.

Mr. Clinton responded at length, stating that the indictment covered 170 pages, and would require a day or two to read it through. In the course of the speeches of both counsel they called attention to the fact that Dr. Carter had never yet denied under oath the main charge preferred against him.
Mr. Sulivan replied by saying that the learned gentlemen might not trouble themselves about that, for when the trial took place the prosecutor would solemnly swear that the charges made by the defendant were utterly unfounded and false. Other clergymen beside Dr. Carter were made the victums of

Her counsel pleaded not guilty, and after compering with them for a few moments the officer removed her to the dock. A formal application was made for bail, but His Honor was not asked to fix the amount at that time.

Judge Bedford intimated that as the counsel had heretofore conferred with District Attorney Garvin in reference to bail, he being ill at present, it would be well to postpone the matter until he could be seen. The curtain then dropped upon the first act of the comedy in which the clergyman and the fair Emma figure so prominently.

THE JACK GLASS HOMICIDE.

Statement of the Accused-Able Argument of Counsel for the Defence-Judge Bedford's Charge to the Jury-Costello Acquitted and Discharged.

The trial of James Costello, indicted for the murder of Jack Glass at an eating saloon in Nassau street, on the 21st January last, held before City Judge Gunning S. Bedford, at General Sessions vesterday, resulted in the acquittal of the accused James Costello. The circumstances connected with the killing were fully detailed at the time, and created considerable interest among the class to which the deceased belonged. The court room yesterday was crowded during the trial by the friends of the man on trial and of the deceased, but no other expression of feeling or interest was manifested beyond the natural manifestation of congratulation on the part of Costello's friends at his acquittal.

THE TESTIMONY. Dr. Vandewater was the first witness called by Assistant District Attorney Sullivan. He testified that he was at the Centre Street Hospital on the morning of the 22d of January when Glass was brought there: that he found wounds on the nose. the wrist, the neck and legs-fourteen in allwhich could have been inflicted by the large carv which could have been inflicted by the large carving knife exhibited to him. He could not say which wound was the immediate cause of death, but the wounds inflicted superinduced pyemia and meningitis, which occasioned Glass' death on the 12th of February. The deceased was a tall, muscular and broad shouldered man.

The District Attorney offered the ante-mortem examination of the deceased in evidence, but it was objected to by Mr. W. F. Howe, counsel for the accused, on the ground that, although Glass was in extremis at the time he made the statement, it was inadmissible as testimony because Glass was an ex-convict. The Court sustained the objection.

THE DEFENCE.

an ex-convict. The Court sustained the objection.

THE DEFENCE.

Mr. Howe, in addressing the jury for the defence, depicted in earnest language the aggravating position in which Costello was placed by the insults addressed to him by the deceased With the contended that the accused only acted in self-defence when he struck the deceased with the carving knife, which he was then using to cut meat for customers whom he was serving.

TESTIMONY FOR THE DEFENCE.

Mr. Howe than called James Loftus, a deputy sheriff, to prove that Glass was convicted of murder and that he was a dangerous character. This deputy sheriff, however, said he did not think Glass was a bad man, that he was not positive that he had been present at the trial of Glass for murder, for he was very young then, and it was a number of years ago. He (witness) was lointly indicated in the state of the content of the content of the was very young then, and it was a number of years ago. indicted for murder, and three were "sent up" out of the five.

Fenton McElroy, the keeper of a restaurant in Nassau street, testified that the prisoner had been in his employ nine years, and was a quiet and inoffensive young man; that he had given Costello orders to permit no person to go into the kitchen, and that on previous occasions Glass made disturbance in his place.

orders to permit no person to go into the kitchen, and that on previous occasions Glass made disturbance in his place.

THE PRISONER'S STATEMENT.

James Costello, the accused, then went upon the stand and gave his version of the affair. He told how Glass came in at midnight and passed into the kitchen, and that when ordered to leave that apartment he became very abusive and used most provoking and insulting language to defendant. The defendant appealed to an officer who was in the saloon to put Glass out, but he refused to do so, whereupon the deceased became more abusive than before. When the deceased called his mother a most opprobrious name he asked Glass if he called her that, and upon his repeating it, accompanied with a kick, Costello struck him on the wrist with a carving knife which he was using at the time. Glass selzed a heavy chair and raised it over Costello's head, and while he followed him up he (the prisoner) struck at him with the knife to keep him away, and finally got into the street and gave himself up to a policeman. He knew Glass to have a notorious reputation, and only wanted to keep him away, and did not desire to hurt him.

In reply to a question put by the District Attorney, Costello said he used the knife on Glass because he wanted to resent the insuit to his mother.

Counsel on either side briefly summed the case up to the jury, Mr. Howe contending that Costello was justified in what he did, while District Attorney Sullivan contended that the testimony showed the act of Costello was unlawful and that he should be convicted of manslaughter in the third degree.

Judge Bedford gave an impartial and succinct statement of the evidence to the jury and the law applicable to it. He said that if the jury believed from the testimony that at the time the accused used the knife he believed his life was in jeopardy and believing himself to be in danger of great bodily harm he inflicted the wonds, and the fercumstances justified him in so doing, they ought to render a verdict of acquittal.

circumstances justified him in so doing, they ought to render a verdict of acquittal.

The jury deliberated for half an hour and returned to the court room with a verdict of not guilty. Cos-tello was discharged and left the Court in company with friends, who congratulated him upon the favorable and speedy termination of the trial.

HOW THEY DO IT NOW. How the Proceeds of Brooklyn Burgla ries are Expressed to New York.

For some weeks past the attention of the officer whose post of duty is on the Brooklyn side of the ferries have noticed that a wagon, upon which was painted "Baldwin's Express, No. 3 Peck slip," lriven by a young fellow about twenty-two years old, wearing a soldier's blue overcoat, has been in the habit of crossing over to Brooklyn at a very early hour in the morning, taking as a load going and returning two barrels. This circumstance attracted the more attention because of the fact that a burglarg had been committed upon a tailor's shop in Fulton avenue and another on a place in Oxford street during the sojourn, it was believed, of the mysterious express wagon in the city. In the case of the former burglary about six hundred dollars worth of cloth was put into sacks, but the robbers were frightened off before they could get out their booty. Yesterday morning Patrolman Quinn, of the Fifth precinct, while on duty at the Roosevelt street ferry, E. D., between six and seven o'clock, had his attention called to the "Baldwin express" wagon and the inevitable "two barrels," He stopped the vehicle, looked in the barrels, which were empty, and under the driver's seat, where was secreted a sack containing eighty pairs of shoes and boots. The wagon, cargo and driver were taken to the station house, and later in the forenoon the prisoner, who is held on suspicion, was taken by Captain Woglam to the office of Chief of Police Campbell, where he was closely questioned as to what he knew about the property found in his possession. The prisonor stood the questioning like a soldier, never once acknowledging anything that was likely to tend to criminate himself, though "hard pressed" by the Chief, and admonished not to attempt to tell a lie unless he wished to take the full brunt of the consequences after.

The prisoner stated that his name was John Baldearly hour in the morning, taking as a load going by the Chief, and admonished not to attempt to tell a lie unless he wished to take the full brunt of the consequences after.

The prisoner stated that his name was John Baldwin, Jr.; that he drove the express wagon for his father, who had owned the vehicle for two years. He left his home, in New York, at quarter past five A. M., to get some bottles from a man who lived in a street in Brooklyn, between the Bridge street and Fulton ferries, and cart them to the residence of one Anderson, in Myrtle avenue, near Broadway. He discharged his load as directed to do by a Mr. Butler, and was driving down Myrtle avenue, near Franklyn, when he was suddenly halled by two men, who stepped out from behind a fence and asked him to carry a bundle to No. 112 Centre street, New York, where a man would receive it and pay him. The men then went off. The Chief inquired, "What do you unharness your horse for in Myrtle avenue?" The expressman denied having done so, but admitted that two men from the Fish Market came over with him, then walked back. "Look out now or you'll walk to the County Jail, young man, if you don't tell the truth." "Were you not over in Oxford street last week?" "No, sir." The prisoner would acknowledge nothing, and was sent to jail. Subsequently the property found in the wagon was identified as having been stolen from the store of James Regan, No. 459 Myrtle avenue, which was burglariously entered and robbed of $506 worth of shoes and boots on the preceding night.

POLICE MATTERS. Thirty-five cases of delinquent officers were tried before the Commissioners yesterday. The only one of any importance among them was a charge brought by a colored man named Frisbie against brought by a colored man named Frisbie against officers Reynolds and Cormick, of the Twentieth precinct. Frisbie stated that on the night of the 28th uit, a number of colored people were giving a ball at the Continental Hall, on the corner of Thirty-fourth street and Eighth avenue, when these policemen gained admission to the building by representing themselves to be members of the press. They were accompanied by a dry goods clerk, who also played the rôle of journalist. The party conducted themselves so badly in the ballroom that the people were obliged to ask them to leave; but, instead of going when requested, they created a row and ended by arresting Frisbie and another man, who were discharged from custody by the presiding magistrate the following morning. The matter was referred to the Board. COLOPTED METHODIST CONFERENCE.

The Brethren Cautioned Against the Rev. Mr. Butler-Charge Against a White Congregation.

The New York African Methodist Conference which met yesterday morning in Zion Church, at West Tenth and Bleecker streets, was attended by about thirty colored clergymen. There was also a large congregation present. Bishop Clinton pre-sided.

a large congregation present. Bishop clinton presided.

The Bishop made some interesting remarks in reference to the manner in which white bishops and clergy of the Methodist Episcopal Church have endeavored to induce them (their colored brethren) to join with them.

The Bishop then called upon the Rev. Mr. Cliff on its excuse for having disappointed a congregation to which he had been duly assigned to preach. Mr. Cliff admitted that he failed to keep the engagement, but said that the night being very rainy, and his shoes entirely too thin, he feared to venture out lest he might imperil his health. A long and animated discussion followed, which terminated in the Conference good-naturedly accepting the explanation.

mated discussion followed, which terminated in the Conference good-naturedly accepting the explanation.

The Rev. Mr. Thomas proposed the following resolution:—

Whereas the property known as the African Methodist Episcopal Zion Churck of Newark, and owned by that society, has gone into the hands of the white Methodist Episcopal Church, and we consider the way in which the said church came into their possession untair and un christianlike in a great religious body;

Resolved, That they have no legal, moral or Christian right to the same, and that the Conference task the necessary steps to bave the matter thoroughly investigated and publish to the world the Irregularity of the said Church.

An excited discussion followed. It appears from the remarks made that the colored people of Newark raised a considerable sum to build the church in question, and when partially completed it was vested in the African Zion Church, but was seized by the Sheriff for a debt of $800, and then passed into the hands of the Central Methodist Episcopal Church. The colored people claim that the church was worth $10,000 when seized for the small debt of $800; the speakers believed that advantage had been taken of the ignorance of the colored people.

After a lively discussion the resolution was passed, and after the transaction of some further business the Conference adjourned.
